GERMANY'S CLAIMS TO NAVAL VICTORY.

the greatest sea-battle of history, that fought off Jut- of the Garden Island, wasn't pleased. He expresses land at the beginning of this month, remains an un-himself editorially as follows: answered question in the minds of neutrals.

Germany's delayed official statement, a portion of which appeared in the Star-Bulletin yesterday and the remainder of which arrived by cable last night and is published today, goes into details to prove that the ierman navy proved itself the superior force in this engagement. The British have given out several official statements, all claiming that Germany suffered not only a relatively heavier less but one absolutely

The trouble with these official statements is that the world has been fed on them ever since the war opened and has come to distrust them thoroughly. The official press bureaus constantly minimize the losses of their own side, even if they do not exaggerate the losses of the enemy. Who, for instance, outside the higher-ups of the German, French and British war staffs, knows precisely what is going on at Verdun? Who believes that the meager announcements from Paris, London and Berlin are telling the real story concerning the progress of the German attack, or the strength of the French counter?

At the beginning of the war, the various countries involved put their news in the hands of press bureaus whose job it was to suppress everything which by any possibility could be of service to the enemy. This policy has been carried to such absurd lengths that I taken as comprehensive accounts. Some months ago holiday season. the German admiralty, finding that its own official lowed an American correspondent, to visit the Gered British report. even this situation hardly detracts from the wide interest with which the detailed German ment is now being received. Its publicationhe Star-Bulletin simultaneously with its appearance mportant mainland papers is significant develop-nt of the greatest sea-fight in ancient or modern

WANTED-SOME POLITICAL FIGHTERS

The Chamber of Commerce has a committee or pal affairs. It was reorganized yesterday, with illiam Thompson at its head, taking the place of rman Watkins, who because of a business absence om Hawaii cannot continue,

The Star-Bulletin believes that one of the most essing and vital municipal affairs before Honolulu that of getting into the campaign for municipal e men of ability, judgment, public-spirit, and the ait of real leadership. Members of the Chamber frown on taking politics into the organization the right kind of politics will do the Chamber d and the community good. Not partisan politics, at civic politics. Not factional politics, but community olitics. Not mean-spirited, devious, narrow politics it whole-souled, broad-gauge, wide-open, straightrward, 'petter city' politics.

Honolulu needs in politics an organization of publicletted fighters. Can the Chamber-will the Chamr-deliver the goods?

If betting against Henry Ford at Chicago was 40 to Domingo would have been a big story. what is it against Bryan at St. Louis? The answer e leave to some of the intelligent gentry who handled agers at Kapiolani park recently.

Honolulu tried pretty hard to please the hundreds of visitors from the other islands who came here for Whether British or German arms won the victory in Kamehameha week, but one visitor, Editor Timmons

> "Honolulu invites the people of the outer islands to come at June 11 and accept her hospitality, and then proceeds to close all of her doors. If the scheme of closing government offices and, more notable still, the stores of the town is intended as a concession to hardworked (?) employes and officials, we have nothing to say, but it certainly leaves Honolulu deucedly uninteresting to the average islander visiting the city. People of the outer islands who have lived in Honolulu have no complaint to make, but rine y per cent of the visitors to the city on occasions like this are, to all intents and purposes, in a strange place. Baseball and horse-racing do not particularly interest them and they have an indifferent time of it generally.

> If Honolulu will take a quiet, friendly tip from us she will in future not let her own holidays fall the same time her friends are invited to come and enjoy theirs. In other words, when excursions from the other islands are in the city every government office should be wide open. Stores should not only be open at regular hours but should keep open evenings. The Stock Exchange, in place of declaring a holiday, should hold double sessions. In short, the whole idea and scheme should be reversed exactly from what it now,

> Honolulu, with her buildings and windows decorated and her stores and offices and government buildings wide open looks good to the visitor from the outer islands. Closed up, and left to the dust and policemen and chauffeurs, it makes one quickly and awfully

This is one "kick" and perhaps there are others based on the same reasons. On the other hand, the Star-Bulletin has heard from very numerous visitors who appreciated the fact that the local merchants cial statements of any occurrence are no longer weren't out to "get the coin" during this territorial

SPECIAL PUNAHOU ANNIVERSARY EDITION.

Punahou's seventy-five years of notable history will e the subject of two special sections of the Star-Bulletin next Saturday-an art section and a news section. Both will be filled with interesting mementoes of the past and with matter of current importance in connection with the anniversary celebration next week.

The art section will contain numerous old and new portraits, many of them of rare historical value, handsomely printed. This as well as the news section, which will be made up of special articles, will be worth souvenirs of a noteworthy occasion.

As the edition will be limited, the Star-Bulletin wishes to advise its patrons to order early.

Some folks are born lucky, some acquire luck and -PROF, A. S. HITCHCOCK: I was sorry to see Professor Rock leave yesterday. I had hoped that he would be of a great deal further assistance to me in my study of the local grasses. He gave me some valuable, if hurried, information in the 24 hours between my arrival and his departure, but I had hoped to work with him through the summer months. He has promised he will be back in September and make a trip to some of the other islands with me. I am glad of that.

-CAPT. ROBERT WAIPA PAR-KER: I think the suggestion of Mayor Lane that the birthday of King Kalakaua be celebrated is a good one. Kalakaua was the greatest of the modern Hawaiians. As the birthday of Washington and Lincoln, the founder and the reconstructor of America, is celebrated on the mainland, so should the birthday of Kamehameha and Kalakaua be celebrated here. I knew Kalakaua well. I was captain of his household guards and served him in many ways for years
